GENERAL COMMENTS ABOUT UMKOMAAS

Umkomaas is a small village on the KwaZulu-Natal South Coast situated about fifty kilometres to the south of Durban.

The village is at the mouth of the Mkomazi River, from which it gets its name. Each year a marathon canoe race is held on the river.

- Umkomaas is a mecca for scuba divers and water sports enthusiasts alike.
- The main scuba diving area, Aliwal Shoal, is consistently rated one of the top ten diving sites in the world.
- The beach is rocky and a popular place for anglers. There is a tidal pool which is floodlit at night.
- We are conveniently situated to all shops, restaurants, beaches and golf courses. This is a home away from home for holidaymakers, business people, golfers and of course scuba divers wanting to dive the world renowned Aliwal Shoal or see Tiger Sharks.
- Between September and October each year the whales come towards the Mkomazi River to give birth.
